This topographic map depicts the Oosaki region in Japan. The upper portion of the map is dominated by a large, irregularly shaped area shaded in red, which likely represents a specific administrative or geographical boundary. Below this red area, a prominent black line stretches horizontally across the map, possibly indicating a major road or a boundary between different administrative divisions. The map shows the city of Oosaki (大崎市) and the town of Kami (加美町). Various geographical features are labeled, including mountains (e.g., 新山, 小原山), rivers (e.g., 大崎川), and lakes (e.g., 湖). The map is oriented with North at the top, as indicated by the north arrow in the top right corner. A scale bar in the bottom right corner shows distances of 0, 1, and 2 kilometers.
